Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate

This bill prohibits cities, villages, towns, counties and school districts from requiring employees to be residents. This does not apply to elected officials and certain officials in a first class city, nor does it apply to certain school board officials. This bill does allow local governmental units to impose residency requirements on emergency personnel. However, the local governmental unit may not require emergency personnel to live closer than 15 miles from the boundary of the municipality. This bill does not apply to emergency personnel who are currently covered by a less restrictive residency requirement.

Any local governmental unit that currently has a residency requirement in effect may see a reduction in costs. The cost savings will be due to elimination of costs incurred for verifying and monitoring the residence of certain employees, other than emergency personnel. Conversely, municipalities without a current residency requirement may see an increase in costs due to staff having to verify and monitor the residence of police officers and firefighters. These costs are likely to be minimal on an individual government basis and are likely to be absorbed within existing resources. In addition, the amount of staff time required for these activities varies, according to the number of employees that have to be monitored. Therefore, the cost savings or increase will vary extensively among units of government.

It is not possible to estimate the value of the cost savings or the increased costs associated with this bill. Therefore, the fiscal effect of this bill is indeterminable.
