Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate

This bill and its substitute amendment appears to be a consolidation of many of the privacy proposals from the last few legislative sessions. It incorporates the provisions of AB 175 which limits the scope of the Woznicki decision. It also provides greater right of access to juvenile police and court records by other law enforcement agencies and other courts.

There should be no fiscal impact on the Department of Justice. DOJ already redacts social security numbers and other identifying information from many records and we advise other state agencies to do the same. This proposed law would simply require DOJ and other state agencies to do what they are already doing in that area.

This bill and its substitute amendment requires the Department of Administration to provide privacy impact statements required under 13.0991. These would be similar to the fiscal notes that must now accompany legislation. The bill and its substitute amendment requires that either house of the Legislature may request DOA to order the preparation or privacy impact statement. However, DOA can "direct one or more state agencies or authorities to prepare a privacy impact statement with respect to that bill." Section 13.0991(3). Without experience in providing privacy impact statements, it is difficult for our department to quantify our costs. If this is similar to our experience with fiscal estimates, these costs should be able to be absorbed within existing operations.
