5 violent persons on supervised release.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

This substitute amendment makes changes to the procedure for releasing certain violent sex offenders into the community. Under current law, a person who commits certain sex offenses may be involuntarily committed as a sexually violent person to the Department of Health Services for control, care, and treatment. If a person is committed and placed in institutional care, the person may periodically petition the court for supervised release. If a court determines that supervised release is appropriate, the court authorizes the person, the person's attorney, the district attorney, any law enforcement agency in the county of intended placement, and any local governmental unit in the county of intended placement to submit to DHS prospective residential options for community placement. Current law requires DHS and the county in which the person is to be placed to prepare a plan that identifies potential sites for the person to reside, taking into consideration the options submitted. Under current law, unless there is good cause to select another county, the person's home county prepares the report.

This substitute amendment requires DHS to consult with a local law enforcement agency that has jurisdiction over any prospective residential option identified by DHS or the county and to request the law enforcement agency to submit a written report that provides information on the prospective residential option. Under the substitute amendment, a local ordinance or resolution that restricts or prohibits a sex offender from residing within the person's home county may not constitute good cause for choosing a different prospective residential county. The substitute amendment requires DHS to take into consideration the written report of the law enforcement agency to determine where the victims of the person live, and to ensure that any potential residential placement of the person meets certain guidelines.

Under the substitute amendment, no sexually violent person generally may be placed in a residence within 1,500 feet of any school, child care facility, youth center, place of worship, or public park. If the person committed a sexually violent offense against a child, he or she may not be placed in a residence in a property adjacent to a property where a child resides. If the person committed a sexually violent offense against an elderly or disabled person, he or she may not be placed in a residence within 1,500 feet of a nursing home or other assisted living facility.

Under the substitute amendment, any local ordinance or resolution that restricts or prohibits a sex offender from residing within a particular city, village, town, or county remains generally enforceable except that it may not be enforced against a person who is placed in a residence under supervised release, or against a person who provides housing to him or her, so long as the person is under supervision and is complying with court orders related to his or her release.
