Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, a person who files a request for a restraining order is called a “petitioner” and the person against whom protection is being sought is called the “respondent.” Under current law, a restraining order may be issued for an adult petitioner for a period of up to four years and for a child petitioner for a period of up to two years or until the child attains the age of 18, whichever comes first. Restraining orders may be extended by up to four years for adults or two years for children, or up to 10 years for adults or five years for children if the court finds that there is a substantial risk that the respondent may commit homicide against or sexually assault the petitioner.

This bill provides that if the respondent has been convicted of the sexual assault of the petitioner, and the petitioner requests a permanent restraining order, the restraining order must be permanent. The bill also creates a process for a respondent to petition the court to remove the permanent restraining order if the criminal conviction that formed the basis for the permanent restraining order has been vacated.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

1 SECTION 1. 813.12 (4) (d) 1m. of the statutes is created to read:

2 813.12 (4) (d) 1m. Upon request by the petitioner, a judge or circuit court
3 commissioner shall order that the injunction is in effect permanently if the 4 respondent has been convicted of a violation of s. 940.225 (1) to (3) in which the 5 petitioner was the crime victim. An order based on a finding under this subdivision
6 is subject to review and modification under s. 813.126 (1m).

7 SECTION 2. 813.122 (5) (dm) 1m. of the statutes is created to read:

8 813.122 (5) (dm) 1m. Upon request by the petitioner, a judge shall order that 9 the injunction is in effect permanently if the respondent has been convicted of a 10 violation of s. 948.02 or 948.025 in which the child victim was the crime victim. An 11 order based on a finding under this subdivision is subject to review and modification 12 under s. 813.126 (1m).

13 SECTION 3. 813.123 (5) (d) 1m. of the statutes is created to read:

14 813.123 (5) (d) 1m. Upon request by the petitioner, a judge shall order that the 15 injunction is in effect permanently if the respondent has been convicted of a violation
16 of s. 940.225 (1) to (3) in which the individual at risk was the crime victim. An order 17 based on a finding under this subdivision is subject to review and modification under 18 s. 813.126 (1m).

23 first ordered has elapsed, the judge shall vacate the injunction.
