Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, in divorces, paternity actions, and other actions affecting the family in which child support is ordered, including actions to revise child support, the court must determine child support payments by using the percentage standard established by administrative rule by the department of workforce development

SENATE BILL 151

(DWD). The percentage standard is a percentage of the payer's gross monthly income. The percentage of income that the child support payer must pay varies with the number of children to be supported. A payer must pay 17% of his or her gross income for one child, 25% for two children, 29% for three children, 31% for four children, and 34% for five or more children. Except in certain situations, the calculation of child support does not take into account the income of the payee or the amount of time that the payer cares for the child during periods of physical placement ordered by the court.

The rules provide for a special way of calculating child support for a shared-time payer. If the payer has physical placement of a child between 31% and 40% of the time, based on the number of times per year that the parent provides overnight care for the child, the rules provide for a specified reduction in the amount of child support that the payer would be required to pay by calculating support by using the percentage standard alone. (For example, a payer with physical placement of a child for 37% of the time pays 76.69% of the amount that he or she would pay by calculating support by using the percentage standard alone.) Also under the rules, if one parent has physical placement of a child between 41% and 59% of the time and the other parent has physical placement of the child for the remainder of the time, based on the number of times that each provides overnight care, the amount of child support that each parent would pay by using the percentage standard alone is calculated, reduced by a specified percentage depending on the amount of time each parent has physical placement of the child calculating support by and compared with the other parent's similarly calculated and reduced amount of child support. (For example, a parent with physical placement of a child for 46% of the time would be obligated to pay 46.72% of the amount of child support that he or she would be obligated to pay by using the percentage standard alone while the other parent with physical placement for 54% of the time would be obligated to pay 20.08% of the amount calculated by using the percentage standard alone.) The parent with the larger calculated and reduced amount must pay the difference as child support to the other parent.

The rules also provide for a special way of calculating child support for a serial-family payer and for the imputation of income to a payer if the court determines that the payer has unproductive assets or has diverted income into assets to avoid paying child support. If a person who is already obligated to pay child support is later ordered to pay support for another child, from a later marriage or a paternity adjudication for example, the amount of support that the person must pay under the later order is calculated by first reducing the payer's gross income by the amount under the first child support order and then applying the percentage standard to that reduced income amount. Income imputation involves multiplying the net value of the assets by the current six-month treasury bill rate or any other reasonable rate.

Under current law, a court is authorized, upon the request of a party, to modify the amount of child support that would be ordered by using the percentage standard. The court must find that use of the percentage standard is unfair to the child or either of the parties after considering a number of factors, such as the earning capacity of each parent, the desirability that the custodian remain in the home as a full-time parent, and extraordinary travel expenses incurred in exercising physical placement rights.

This bill changes the method of determining the amount of child support to be paid in actions affecting the family, including actions to revise child support. Under the bill, the court must determine each parent's gross income and percentage of physical placement with the child. The bill specifies what the court must include in income, what the court must exclude from income, and what the court must subtract from income in determining each parent's gross income. The bill requires the court to include in a parent's gross income wages that the court determines were paid to other family members for the purpose of diverting income. The court may impute income to a parent if the court determines that the parent has concealed or transferred assets for the purpose of avoiding child support or that the gross incomes of the parents will not adequately provide for the child and there are unproductive assets. The court must impute income based on a 40-hour work week to a parent who is not working at least 40 hours per week if the court determines that the parent is able to work and that work is available in the parent's community. The court determines the percentage of physical placement that a parent has on the basis of the number of days, rather than overnights, that a parent cares for the child in a year. If both parents care for the child on the same day, the court determines the amount of time that each parent cares for the child on that day on a basis that reflects each parent's proportionate share of the total expenses incurred for the child by both parents on that day.

After the court determines each parent's gross income and percentage of physical placement, the court determines each parent's gross monthly child support obligation. How that obligation is determined depends on the combined gross monthly income of the two parents. If the combined gross monthly income of the two parents is equal to or less than $4,000, each parent's gross monthly child support obligation is equal to the percentage standard under current law. That is, if there is one child, each parent's gross monthly child support obligation is 17% of his or her gross monthly income. If the combined gross monthly income of the two parents is greater than $4,000, determining a parent's gross monthly child support obligation is a multi-step process. The court must first determine the combined gross monthly child support obligation of the two parents. For combined gross monthly incomes that do not exceed $20,000, the combined gross monthly child support obligation of the two parents equals a specified amount, depending on the number of children, plus a specified percentage of the combined gross monthly income of the two parents above $4,000. For combined gross monthly incomes that exceed $20,000, the combined gross monthly child support obligation of the two parents equals a specified amount, depending on the number of children, plus a specified percentage of the combined gross monthly income of the two parents above $20,000. Each parent's gross monthly child support obligation is the same percentage of the parents' combined gross monthly child support obligation as that parent's gross income is of the parents' combined gross income. Just as under current law, a parent's gross monthly child support obligation is reduced if the parent is subject to another child support order or is otherwise legally obligated to support one or more other children. Under the bill, however, a parent's gross monthly child support obligation is reduced by a specified percentage, depending on the number of other children being supported, rather than by the amount of support being paid for the other children.

After determining each parent's gross monthly child support obligation, the court determines which parent pays support to the other parent and the amount of support to be paid. If the court grants a parent fewer than 55 days of physical placement in a year, that parent pays the amount of his or her gross monthly child support obligation to the other parent. If the court grants at least 55 days of physical placement to each parent, the court multiplies each parent's gross monthly child support obligation by 1.4 and by the other parent's percentage of physical placement. The resulting amount is each parent's net monthly child support obligation. The parent with the larger net monthly child support obligation pays to the other parent the difference between the two net monthly child support obligations. As under current law, the court may upon request modify the amount of support that would be determined by using the method of calculating child support that is provided for in the bill, after considering the same factors as under current law and upon finding that use of the new method is unfair to the child or either of the parties.

The bill also makes a couple of changes related to revisions of child support orders. Under current law, the court may revise the amount of child support under an order only if the court finds that there has been a substantial change in circumstances. The court must use the percentage standard in revising the amount. The bill requires the new method of calculating child support to be used in a revision. Current law specifies a number of situations that constitute rebuttable presumptions of a substantial change in circumstances sufficient to justify a revision. Among those situations is the expiration of 33 months since the date of entry of the last support order, including a revision, unless the order is expressed as a percentage of income rather than as a specific amount. The bill changes this provision so that the expiration of 33 months since the date of entry of the last support order, including a revision, constitutes a rebuttable presumption of a substantial change in circumstances, regardless of how the order is expressed, if the amount of child support calculated by using the new method exceeds the amount under the last order by at least 10% of the amount under the last order or by at least $40 per month. The bill also adds a new situation that constitutes a rebuttable presumption of a substantial change in circumstances: if the amount of child support last ordered was based on the amount of physical placement awarded to the parties, the payer has consistently failed to exercise his or her physical placement rights, and the amount of child support under a revised order, using the new method and based on the actual amount of physical placement that the payer has in the past exercised, exceeds the amount under the last order by at least 15% of the amount under the last order or by at least $60 per month. Additionally, the bill requires a court to delay, until at least 30 days after an order modifying child support is signed, a decision on a parent's motion to modify physical placement if the court determines that the parent is seeking the physical placement modification in response to a motion to modify child support. The delay does not apply, however, if the parent seeking the physical placement modification presents any credible evidence that the current allocation of physical placement will cause irreparable harm to the child.

The bill requires DWD to prepare and make available to judges and other court personnel computer software, as well as tables and instruction manuals, to help with the calculation of child support by the new method provided in the bill.

Finally, federal law requires each state to review, and revise if appropriate, its child support guidelines at least once every four years to ensure that they result in the determination of appropriate child support amounts. The bill requires the secretary of workforce development to create a child support review committee by January 1, 2002, and by January 1 every four years after that, to review the adequacy for supporting children of the new method of calculating child support provided in the bill. The committee must be composed of representatives of the judicial, executive, and legislative branches of state government; of the state bar; and of advocates for children, child support payers, and child support payees. Each committee created must report its findings and legislative recommendations to the joint legislative council and to the federal department of health and human services.

12 SECTION 23. 767.251 of the statutes is created to read:

13 767.251 Calculation of child support payments. (1) GROSS INCOME. For 20 intended to replace income.

20 the parent's household that the court determines were paid for the purpose of 21 diverting income to avoid paying child support.

22 (e) If the court determines that a party has encumbered, concealed, damaged,

SENATE BILL 151

1 nonproductive assets, the court may impute income to one or both parents from such
2 property or assets by multiplying the value of the property or asset by the current

14 out of a total of 365 days in a year, that the parent provides care for the child.

15 (b) Notwithstanding par. (a), if both parents provide care for the child in the 16 same 24-hour period, the court shall determine the amount of time that each parent
17 provides care for the child on that day not on the basis of the number of hours that 18 each parent cares for the child but on a basis that reflects each parent's proportionate
19 share of the total expenses incurred by the 2 parents in caring for the child on that 20 day.

21 (c) After making any adjustments necessary to ensure that the total number
22 of days in a year that the parents have physical placement of the child equals 365,
23 the court shall determine the percentage of the 365 days in a year that each parent
24 has physical placement of the child, and shall make any adjustments necessary to 25 ensure that the total of those percentages equals 100%.

SENATE BILL 151SECTION 23

1 (3) GROSS MONTHLY CHILD SUPPORT OBLIGATIONS. For the purpose of determining
2 child support payments under sub. (4), the court shall determine the gross monthly
3 child support obligation of each parent as follows:

4 (a) If the combined gross monthly income of the 2 parents is equal to or less than 5 $4,000, the gross monthly child support obligation of each parent equals the 6 following percentage of that parent's gross monthly income:

7 1. If there is one minor child, 17%.

8 2. If there are 2 minor children, 25%.

9 3. If there are 3 minor children, 29%.

10 4. If there are 4 minor children, 31%.

11 5. If there are 5 or more minor children, 34%.

12 (b) If the combined gross monthly income of the 2 parents is greater than $4,000
13 but not greater than $20,000, the gross monthly child support obligation of each
14 parent is calculated as follows:

15 1. The combined gross monthly child support obligation of the 2 parents equals
16 the following amount:

17 a. If there is one minor child, $680 plus 8.5% of the combined gross monthly
18 income of the 2 parents in excess of $4,000.

19 b. If there are 2 minor children, $1,000 plus 12.5% of the combined gross
20 monthly income of the 2 parents in excess of $4,000.

24 monthly income of the 2 parents in excess of $4,000.

SENATE BILL 151

1 e. If there are 5 or more minor children, $1,360 plus 17% of the combined gross
2 monthly income of the 2 parents in excess of $4,000.

3 2. The gross monthly child support obligation of each parent equals that
4 parent's percentage of the combined gross income of the 2 parents multiplied by the
5 applicable combined gross monthly child support obligation amount under subd. 1.

6 (c) If the combined gross monthly income of the 2 parents is greater than 7 $20,000, the gross monthly child support obligation of each parent is calculated as 8 follows:

9 1. The combined gross monthly child support obligation of the 2 parents equals
10 the following amount:

11 a. If there is one minor child, $2,040 plus 4% of the combined gross monthly
12 income of the 2 parents in excess of $20,000.

13 b. If there are 2 minor children, $3,000 plus 6% of the combined gross monthly
14 income of the 2 parents in excess of $20,000.

15 c. If there are 3 minor children, $3,480 plus 7% of the combined gross monthly
16 income of the 2 parents in excess of $20,000.

17 d. If there are 4 minor children, $3,720 plus 8% of the combined gross monthly
18 income of the 2 parents in excess of $20,000.

19 e. If there are 5 or more minor children, $4,080 plus 9% of the combined gross
20 monthly income of the 2 parents in excess of $20,000.

21 2. The gross monthly child support obligation of each parent equals that
22 parent's percentage of the combined gross income of the 2 parents multiplied by the
23 applicable combined gross monthly child support obligation amount under subd. 1.

24 (d) Notwithstanding pars. (a), (b), and (c), if a parent is subject to another child
25 support order or is otherwise legally obligated to support one or more other children,

SENATE BILL 151SECTION 23

1 that parent's gross monthly child support obligation is the amount determined for
2 that parent under par. (a), (b), or (c), reduced by the following percentage:

- 3 1. If the number of other children the parent is obligated to support is one, 90%.
- 4 2. If the number of other children the parent is obligated to support is 2, 85%.
- 5 3. If the number of other children the parent is obligated to support is 3, 80%.
- 6 4. If the number of other children the parent is obligated to support is 4 or more, 7 75%.

8 (4) AMOUNT OF PAYMENTS. The court shall determine child support payments
9 as follows:

10 (a) In sole placement cases. If the court grants periods of physical placement
11 to only one parent, or if the court grants periods of physical placement to both parents
12 but one parent has physical placement of the child for fewer than 55 days in a year,
13 the parent with less or no physical placement shall pay to the other parent the gross
14 monthly child support obligation determined for that payer parent under sub. (3).

15 (b) In shared placement cases. If the court grants periods of physical placement
16 to both parents and each parent has physical placement of the child for at least 55
17 days in a year, the court shall determine child support payments in the following
18 manner:

19 1. Each parent's gross monthly child support obligation determined under sub.
20 (3) shall be multiplied by 1.4 and by the other parent's percentage of physical
21 placement determined under sub. (2) (c). The product under this subdivision for each
22 parent is that parent's net monthly child support obligation.

23 2. Except as provided in subd. 3., the parent with the greater net monthly child
24 support obligation under subd. 1. shall pay as child support, to the parent with the

SENATE BILL 151

1 smaller net monthly child support obligation under subd. 1., the difference between
2 those net monthly child support obligations.

3 3. If the amount of child support that a parent is obligated to pay under subd.
4 2. is greater than his or her gross monthly child support obligation determined under
5 sub. (3), that parent shall pay as child support to the other parent the amount of his
6 or her gross monthly child support obligation determined under sub. (3).

7 (c) In 3rd-party placement cases. If a child is placed outside his or her home
8 in a residential, nonmedical facility, the child support obligation of each parent shall
9 be his or her gross monthly child support obligation, as determined under sub. (3).

10 (d) In split placement cases. If there is more than one child, if the amount of 11 physical placement that a parent has with one or more of the children is not the same
12 as the amount that the parent has with one or more of the other children, and if the 13 court determines that each parent is required to pay child support to the other parent
14 under par. (a) or (b) 2. or 3., the court shall require only the parent who is required
15 to pay the greater amount to pay child support, and to pay only the difference in the 16 amounts, to the other parent.
