Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, subject to certain exceptions, the records of the court assigned to exercise jurisdiction under the Children's Code and the Juvenile Justice Code (juvenile court) are confidential and may not be opened to inspection or their contents disclosed except by order of the juvenile court. Current law, however, requires a juvenile court, on the request of any other juvenile court, a municipal court, or a district attorney, corporation counsel, municipal attorney, or attorney or guardian ad litem for a party to a proceeding in that other juvenile court or municipal court to review the juvenile court's records for the purpose of that proceeding, to open for inspection by any authorized representative of the requester the records of the juvenile court relating to any child who has been the subject of a proceeding in the juvenile court.

This substitute amendment provides that the records of the juvenile court shall be open for inspection by a social worker employed by the Department of Health and Family Services, a county department of human services or social services, or a licensed child welfare agency who is providing services to a juvenile court. Before a person may inspect a record under the substitute amendment, the person must submit a signed statement to the custodian of the record stating why inspection of the record is necessary and stating that the person will keep the information obtained from the record confidential as required under current law and will use and further disclose the information only for the purpose of providing services to the juvenile court. A person who obtains any information under the substitute amendment may use and further disclose the information only for the purpose of providing services to the juvenile court or as permitted under current law.

In addition, the substitute amendment provides for a forfeiture of not more than $5,000 for a person who intentionally discloses information in violation of the substitute amendment.
